1. On 11 July 1950, Vichien Luangkhot went to Houei Sai to negotiate with the French an agreement for Chinese Nationalist troops to enter Indochina. He was accompanied by a staff officer of the Chinese Nationalist troops stationed at Thakilek, in Kengtung.*
2. The French insisted that the Chinese troops would have to surrender their arms before entering Indochina. The Chinese Nationalists refused to comply with the demand.
3. The Viet Minh is reported to be sending a representative to contact these Chinese, in order to try to enlist their assistance against the French. Failing this, they will try to persuade the troops to hand over their arms to the Viet Minh.
